

Why is it acceptable that cable/satellite television operators can provide regional information on channels such as the Weather Channel, but satellite radio is the exception? FCC, please do not take away XM's ability to broadcast regional coverage. If you do, make it a level playing field and take away cable's ability to do the same.